Introduction

For at least twelve years of our early lives, we are forced to attend school. Some people go on to higher education, and even university. But the fact of the matter is: education is boring, learning is dull. The education system is sapping the fun from millions of students across the nation. Who's to say we can't inject a little entertainment into our classrooms?

Student DARES

There are dares in this book to be played in the classroom, the library, in halls of residence and during extracurricular activities. Feel free to mix it up and make things more interesting.

Remember, we are all in this together. It is up to each and every one of us to rise to the challenge and make learning institutions across the land a little bit more tolerable. It is time to embrace your inner delinquent.

Student DARES

WARNING NO. 1: Playing Student Dares will not reward you with the grades you have always dreamt of, but rest assured you will leave the classroom safe in the knowledge that you have brightened up the day of every student. Or just confused the hell out of them.

WARNING NO. 2: Use this book wisely. Amuse and perplex your tutors, but don't make them cry. They are the ones who mark your papers, and they will remember you at your graduation.

Student DARES

A quick note about the point system:

The dares have been given a carefully graded point system. Warm yourself up with the 1 point dares: they are perfect for the confident beginner or for your first day in a new group.

The 3 point dares are easy to perform but are sometimes so subtle they may go unnoticed.

DARES

The 5 point dares are not to be taken lightly. They are challenging and somewhat outrageous. Expect very puzzled glances and to lose friends.

If it is your last day at college or you are sure expulsion is looming on the horizon, by all means turn straight to the 10 point dares. Do not blame me for the consequences.
